Study: Fully Vaccinated Healthcare Workers Carry 251 Times Viral Load, Pose Threat to Unvaccinated Patients, Co-Workers

A preprint paper by the prestigious Oxford University Clinical Research Group, published Aug. 10 in The Lancet, found vaccinated individuals carry 251 times the load of COVID-19 viruses in their nostrils compared to the unvaccinated.

A groundbreaking preprint paper by the prestigious Oxford University Clinical Research Group, published Aug. 10 in The Lancet, includes alarming findings devastating to the COVID vaccine rollout.

The study found vaccinated individuals carry 251 times the load of COVID-19 viruses in their nostrils compared to the unvaccinated.

While moderating the symptoms of infection, the jab allows vaccinated individuals to carry unusually high viral loads without becoming ill at first, potentially transforming them into presymptomatic superspreaders.

This phenomenon may be the source of the shocking post-vaccination surges in heavily vaccinated populations globally.

showed that fully vaccinated workers — about two months after injection with the Oxford/AstraZeneca COVID-19 vaccine (AZD1222) — acquired, carried and presumably transmitted the Delta variant to their vaccinated colleagues.

They almost certainly also passed the Delta infection to susceptible unvaccinated people, including their patients. Sequencing of strains confirmed the workers transmitted SARS-CoV-2 to one another.

This is consistent with the observations in the U.S. from Farinholt and colleagues, and congruent with comments by the director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention conceding COVID-19 vaccines have failed to stop transmission of SARS-CoV-2.

On Feb. 11, the World Health Organization indicated the AZD1222 vaccine efficacy of 63.09% against the development of symptomatic SARS-CoV-2 infection. The conclusions of the Chau paper support the warnings by leading medical experts that the partial, non-sterilizing immunity from the three notoriously “leaky” COVID-19 vaccines allow carriage of 251 times the viral load of SARS-CoV-2 as compared to samples from the pre-vaccination era in 2020.

Thus, we have a key piece to the puzzle explaining why the Delta outbreak is so formidable — fully vaccinated are participating as COVID-19 patients and acting as powerful Typhoid Mary-style superspreaders of the infection.

Vaccinated individuals are blasting out concentrated viral explosions into their communities and fueling new COVID surges. Vaccinated healthcare workers are almost certainly infecting their coworkers and patients, causing horrendous collateral damage.

Continued vaccination will only make this problem worse, particularly among frontline doctors and nurses workers who are caring for vulnerable patients.

CLARIFICATION: The comparison of viral load between vaccinated and unvaccinated (pre-vaccine era) as reported in the Chau et al. 2021 Lancet preprint is between two different variants of SARS-CoV-2. Dr. McCullough states directly that samples were compared to those “from the pre-vaccination era of 2020.” Thus, differences between these two groups aren’t a result of vaccination status alone. In two additional preprint scientific publications (Riemersma et al. 2021, Chia et al. 2021), comparable viral loads of the Delta variant of SARS-CoV-2 are reported among vaccinated and unvaccinated patients. However, this itself is an indictment of vaccine efficacy as both vaccinated and unvaccinated individuals possess the ability to spread the Delta variant. Simply stated, COVID vaccines have failed to stop transmission of SARS-CoV-2.

This paper does not compare the viral loads of those infected with the Delta variant in the two populations: vaccinated and have delta; unvaccinated and have delta. This compares the viral load to the vaccinated who are infected with delta to the unvaccinated who were infected with older strains in 2020. However, it clearly shows that the vaccine is useless for preventing transmission.

The assumption is that the vaccinated have delta in a higher degree - but remember, there are NO TESTS being used right now to determine delta from wild-type or lambda or any of the 400 mutated strains. You know how the CDC determines if a person has delta or not? They just assume it is so. So much for "science".

The CDC does not sell vaccines. They buy vaccines to distribute them as part of government programs to make vaccines available to places that otherwise don't have access. Think super rural or poor areas that don't have a drug store or hospital or walmart on every corner. As it relates to the CDC's patents: these are in place not to make money selling anything (they don't do that) these are in place so that the discoveries they make with R&D will NOT be copied by for-profit companies and monetized to the nth degree. The treatments they develop and distribute are done so for mass consumption, not for profit. So they patent their findings to prevent someone from making them for-profit.

Good post overall with a rational look at the situation.

However, you may want to check your normative bias. The CDC operates, in principle, in the manner you describe. However, there are many vectors that affect this "ideal" operational method, and although not "evil" in intent, can be described as such in practice through the emergent effect of how individuals in the organization effect their roles in light of incentives. Sure, they may not hold secret meetings in dark smokey back rooms, but influences often allow one to justify biasing one way or the other.

That the CDC isn't telling the truth to Americans is no conspiracy theory: it's right out there in the open for everyone to see. The CDC openly admits that it is fudging the COVID-19 death figures. Explain how a ship at sea with only non-vaccine vaccinated passengers and crew who tested negative for the virus has a COVID outbreak?

Andy Wacker → SendsV8 • a day ago

The only things I'll reply regarding are those I disagree with. First, the vaccine was not untested. There are journals published as far back as the 80s testing mRNA vaccines using the exact same formulas and technology as the vaccines being distributed right now. The only thing that changed was the "programming" of what the mRNA targets. The only reason mRNA hasn't been used on a wider scale is funding. Funding was scarce because the mRNA tests that had been conducted targeted notoriously difficult to treat viruses like rabies, and the mRNA failed to treat the infections tested. Once funding was guaranteed by the Trump administration the science proved out.

Second, nobody promised any level of

I have read this paper written by Nguyen Van Vinh Chau and it does not say that those with breakthrough infections were not sick. It simply says they all recovered "Between 11th-25th June 2021 (week 7-8 after dose nothing in the article about vaccinated people being much less likely to carry the virus at all. The interpretation at the end says "Breakthrough Delta variant infections are associated with high viral loads, prolonged PCR positivity, and low levels of vaccine-induced neutralizing antibodies, explaining the transmission between the vaccinated people. Physical distancing measures remain critical to reduce SARS-CoV-2 Delta variant transmission".

The paper also does not contradict the consensus-based-on-available-data-in-the-wild conclusion that breakthrough infections are still rare and that serious illness from breakthrough infections are still rare. They tested breakthrough infections for viral load and found that it can be high. All previous conclusions about how often breakthrough infections occur and how often those folks get sick are still in place and the paper makes that clear.

This is somewhat unrelated but please explain to me why those who got the natural infection are told they must be vaccinated. I have read many papers by virologists who feel that the natural infection is far superior in generating a broader antibody response. Also, I would think someone like you is all for vaccine passports. It suits your agenda. Frank Ruscetti's book is due out 31 August 2021. Perhaps he may have interesting things to say.

from this paper. You definitely can't conclude that it would be lower than that of vaccinated people.

I remember seeing that video of the firefighters. Also, the owner, Silverstein admitted that he and the either the mayor fire-chief or somebody decided that was the best course of action and that they "pulled" it (demolished). Big error for him in the PBS interview because it takes weeks to set up the explosives, not a few hours. .

 The building was loaded with important evidence against Enron (trillions stolen), Tyco and a whole bunch of other scams that they needed to get rid of the evidence. Like the OK bombing, they put the medical records for the military effected by Gulf War syndrome that was caused by the bad Anthrax shot and all the FBI dirt on the Clinton's and all the cocaine smuggling into Mena. They even sent in box trucks to gather up the file cabinets just to be sure. That's why they pulled the search teams back at Waco, so they could do that. Alive people screaming in the rubble were ordered left to die.

flew United Airlines as he knew two of the pilots who were murdered by the muscle guys that hijacked the flights. He indicates that there was spillover from the two planes that crashed into the Twin Towers and that building 7 was engulfed in flames for 8 hours and that led to its collapse. I think that is why building 7 was "pulled" . I am but 1/4 of the way through this 2008 book.

Victoria → Paul Corona • 3 days ago

You have to wonder about how a chimera cell-replicates when it contains a 3rd-strand DNA.

How does that effect the rate of mutations? Or the direction, meaning, a tendency towards one type of adaptive change or another.

To some extent, the mutations will be driven by the environment.

Did the puppet masters plan to have more of population jabbed at this point? (I believe that did!)

Will having less of the population jabbed at this point effect the direction of the mutations? I think it will.

Will that partially explain their desperate rush to push this agenda forward? Warp speed ahead, Scotty.

Hard to know what's going on as 99% of what we read is probably false information.

Statistics are the new weapon of choice.

But isn't the same thing happening in the US?
E.g., Tennessee has a republican governor who refused to roll over & the next thing you know, 17" rain fall in a matter of hours, killing many and destroying communities. In addition to the humanitarian tragedy, it also costs the states a lot of money to rebuild (unless maybe federal funds are obtained but the disasters fall just short of qualifying).

Australia was hit with massive wildfires and next thing you know, they are a beta test site for all things fascist.
